Foreword:

In its concern to promote the preservation of American Samoan History and Culture, the American Samoa Historical Records Advisory Board applied for funds from the U.S. National Archives' Historical Publications and Records Commission in 1999. The object was to catalog and conserve significant documents held by the Territory of Am. Samoa Government Archives, the High Court, and its Territorial Registrar. Communications, legal research, record surveys and subsequent planning with U.S. National Archives staff eventually resulted in 2001 funds to focus on cataloging, conserving and publishing a finding guide of the Am. Samoa Government's High Court files of Land and Matai Title Cases. These Judicial Branch files are a significant set of public records documenting the proceedings and decisions made by U.S. Naval Officers, Am. Samoan District Judges and Dept. of Interior Civilian Judge Appointees. Their rulings created the criteria and precedents for Samoan family Matai and Land Title cases and decisions on family, village, government, corporate and individual Samoan Land ownership.

The civil cases begin in 1900, after a century of explorers, castaways, missionaries, whalers, traders, planters and foreign consulates had introduced a Christian consumer society. Adoption of a Western Democratic form of government by Samoan Paramount Chiefs began in 1873, and lasted until 1899. American, British, German and Samoan Government factionalism and a civil revolution then made European and American diplomats from London, Berlin and Washington, D.C. annex and divide the Samoan Islands into a Western German Samoa and an Eastern American Samoa. Prior to this event, land transactions involving Samoans and Europeans were registered by respective American, British or German consulates and/or the Samoan Government. Disputes over lands sold by rival chieftains in earlier 19th Century civil wars led an 1890-98 Tripartite Samoa Government to readjudicate and regrant all land titles in 1894-5. Late 19th Century district title cases were also arbitrated by Samoan Government judges and, later, by the Tripartite Supreme Court established under the 1890 Berlin Treaty.

When International Annexation occurred in late 1899, Eastern Samoa was already divided into several political camps. Loyalists of Samoan Government Democracies of 1873-1898 and independent Tutuila Chieftain separatists occupied the American Samoan islands of Tutuila and Aunu'u. The other Eastern Samoan islands of Manu'a were ruled by the Royal Samoan Chief Tuimanu'a, who retained his sovereignty until acceding to a formal treaty in 1904. Eastern Samoa thereupon became an American Polynesian Territory after the Hawaiian annexation of 1898 and together with the Phillipines, Guam and Puerto Rico formed America's first overseas colonies. The American Samoa High Court archives is therefore a special group of records documenting the development of American Law and Jurisprudence in the Pacific. The cases are also an important source of traditional genealogy, language and custom; and of local, national and international history regarding Imperialism, World War I, World War II, etc. This project therefore served to preserve and catalog the cases in order to improve public access and remediate decades of usage and storage by High Court officials, lawyers and researchers.

American Samoa's Judicial History:

Prior to the annexation and division of the Samoan Islands by American/European Nations in 1899, Samoans meted justice according to their ancient customs along with new innovations introduced by explorers, castaways, missionaries, visiting warships and foreign residents. Earlier, before the 19th Century, accounts recorded by missionaries and voyagers recall that family and village councils prevailed and that individual or group disputes or crimes were debated and solved by village “fono” councils. Disagreements were solved by oration, bestowing titles, ceremonial apologies, and/or customary marriage, mats, food or goods exchanges. Unsolvable problems led to social arguments and warfare with contenders humiliated, abused and/or banished to the sea. Tutuila, Am. Samoa was a traditional haven for Samoans fleeing cruel chiefs and social oppression at the main islands of Savaii/Upolu. When Christian churches and schools arrived in the 1830’s Samoans gradually became literate of Western Law and their Highest Chiefs signed Samoa’s first International Treaty with the United States in 1839. Resident foreign consuls and visiting warships soon became a venue for foreign justice during the 1840’s-60’s. When a series of armed civil wars erupted in the 1860’s, Samoan oppositions negotiated a Western Style ‘Democracy’ on March 1, 1873. This first Samoan Government was influenced by United States agents, who introduced a Constitution, a Dual Kingship and a Two Party Parliament of Upper and Lower Chiefs. A portion of this government subsequently permitted U.S. Trade rights to Pago Pago Harbor in 1878, making similar treaties with Britain and Germany in 1879. It’s judiciary was led by a Chief Judge and/or the King(s) who decided criminal and civil complaints by Samoans. Matters concerning foreigners were heard by the appropriate American, British or German Counsel. By 1879, the Apia Municipality and adjacent Mulinu'u Peninsula was the Capital of Western Democracy in the Islands of Savaii, Upolu and Tutuila. The Manu'a Islands however, were a separate independent Monarchy.

The Samoan Government experienced increasing foreign economic interests by the 1870-80’s, leading to international espionage with a puppet war between rival factions from 1884-89 that was only halted by a phenomenal Hurricane in 1889. Afterwards, a Tripartite Berlin Treaty constructed by foreign diplomats restored the Malietoa Laupepa Kingship and established Independence, along with the Supreme Court, Taxation, a Lands Commission, etc. The creation of Village, District and High Courts was also started under the Berlin Treaty on Dec. 30, 1891. Although peaceful at first, the early Samoan Tripartite Government subsequently encountered more factionalism, dispute and another civil war during the 1890’s leading to imprisonment or exile of political dissidents. When King Laupepa died in August, 1898, a disagreement over his successor led the adherents of Samoan Paramount Chief Tuiatua Mataafa to riot and forcefully overthrow the Tripartite Government on January 1, 1899. This was in response to a Supreme Court case decision decreeing Laupepa’s son Malietoa Tanumafili I as rightful King. The 1899 Samoan revolutionaries were therefore recognized as a new provisional government and resisted foreign domination until being suppressed by American, British and German militia and warships in March-April, 1899.

Afterwards, a series of meetings between the Paramount Chiefs, foreign Consulates and an International Commission sent by the powers resulted in a truce. All parties agreed to abolish the Kingship government system and surrender and sell their weapons. Then, on December 2nd, an annexation and division of the Samoan islands was announced by American, Britain and German diplomats without Samoan representation via the 1899 Washington Convention. Samoa's Islands were therefore divided between Germany and the United States. After the German Flag was raised at Mulinu'u Peninsula on March 2nd, 1900, the Eastern Samoa High Chiefs of Tutuila officiated a Deed of Cession with the United States on April 17, 1900, followed by a Manu'a Deed of Cession on July 16, 1904 by Paramount Chief Tuimanu'a. The Islands of Tutuila and Manu'a thus became a part of the United States and developed it's own Judicial System while Western Samoans followed German Law until New Zealand confiscated German Samoa in World War I and established British Law. When United States President William McKinley placed Tutuila and Manu'a under the Dept. of the Navy, he appointed USN Commandant Benjamin Franklin Tilley as the first commandant of the "U.S. Naval Station Colony of Tutuila and Manu'a". B.F. Tilley and subsequent Commandants and Governors then established and posted public laws, among which was the regulation creating Am. Samoa's District and Village Courts and the High Court. A court of Naval Officers and tradition chosen Samoan Judges, became the Judiciary and arbitrated cases according to U.S. Law and local proclamations, first codified by Governor Waldo Evans in 1921. The Samoan Judiciary was under the Office of the Secretary of Native Affairs. The first Secretary was Mr. Edwin W. Gurr, who's role from 1900-1908 was secondary only to Naval Governors, with duties as a District Judge; a liaison between Commandants and Samoan people; supervision of District Governors, Judges, Magistrates; and overseeing the copra industry, police, and tax collection, in addition to being sheriff, prosecutor and judge. After E.W. Gurr, John Dwyer and several other Naval officers held the office from 1908 to 1931 when, after public criticism over its extraordinary powers, the position was replaced by an Attorney General. The Native Affairs Department then became a division of the Attorney Generals Office and in turn evolved into the Office of Samoan Affairs. In addition, a new Judicial Department was created. The first Chief Justice Harry Woods followed by Albert Morrow in 1939, whose term, initially interrupted by a series of four World War II Military Judges, lasted until 1974. In World War II a series of Emergency Regulations were made by Military Marine Officers under Marshall Law. American Samoa's Laws were recodified and published in 1937, 1946, 1961, 1973, 1981 & 1997.

In the aftermath of World War II's Pacific War, Am. Samoans petitioned for their own Legislature and President Harry S. Truman transferred administration of American Samoa from the U.S. Navy to the Executive Branch's Department of the Interior. The 1951 change from a military to a civilian administration subsequently led to a revision of American Samoa's Judicial Department. A new, separate Judicial Branch was created and Village Courts were closed and transferred into the District Courts via the Department of Interior's 1953 Judiciary Act. American Samoans then refined the Judicial Branch with their 1960 (1967) Constitutions, which formalized the courts, it's independence from other branches, and procedures for judicial appointments. Since it's creation, American Samoa's Legislature has made various laws to improve the Judiciary, such as extending it's jurisdiction to Am. Samoa's Swains and Rose Atolls and re-defining judge appointments and duties. Other changes have included the establishment of separate Appellate, Trial and Land and Titles Courts along with the modification of residual Village Courts.

This catalog of cases therefore represents evidence of the development of Am. Samoa's Judicial System during local, national and international events and chronicles the American Samoan people's history of legalizing their traditional island lands, titles and customs. Their perseverance is evident in many American Samoan judicial policies and Legislative acts, most notably that of retaining Samoan Matai Titles and Lands for Samoans only. Other than a small percentage of freehold lands adjudicated by the Tripartite Government's Supreme Court in 1894-5 and several lands confiscated by the Naval Government for public purposes during the early 1900's and WWII, the majority of American Samoa's lands remain with the contemporary representatives of the original families and chiefs of American Samoa's Tutuila, Manu'a and Swains Islands or with the actions of their elected officials over government properties since the local electorate was established by a voter referendum in 1978.

Currently (2005) the U.S. Dept. of Interior website describes the American Samoa Judiciary as follows, 'The Chief Justice and the Associate Justices, who head the High Court of American Samoa, are appointed by the Secretary of the Interior from recommendations of the local Governor. The judiciary also consists of district and village courts. The judges for these courts are appointed by the Governor, subject to confirmation by the Senate. The United States civil and criminal cases, augmented by such local laws and regulations as enacted by the American Samoa Legislature, constitute the body of law adjudicated in the courts. The current Chief Justice is the Honorable Michael Kruse, the first resident Samoan to be appointed to the position. Unlike other U.S. territories, American Samoa does not have a Federal district court'

An Electronic Catalog

The disc enclosed with this finding guide is an electronic copy for usage in any standard CD-Rom device. The electronic version will simplify the search of cases by using it's attached search feature. Cases are listed via several fields: file number, file caption, case disposition, case publication (with microfilm copy information). Case files numbers are usually chronological by each year, although there are some that span several years due to continuous filing. Some files were labelled with alpha numeric or alphabetic designators. The case file caption usually lists litigants, with land name with village location sometimes added. When searching the electronic catalog version of this guide for traditional apostrophied Samoan words or pronouns, look for unapostrophied variations as well, ie. Nu'uuli or Nuuuli and/or Le'i or Lei.

Samoan names/spellings can also sometimes be located by searching for a portion of the name rather than the entire name, ex. Tautala rather than Tautalaga or Asi rather than Leasiolagi. Other than minor grammatical, numbering or spelling errors while editing, the listing duplicates the official High Court of American Samoa finding guide received at the start of the project in late 2002. Revisions or additions encountered during the course of the project are within parenthesis. Cases missed during databasing appear at the end of each numbered listing as additional items. This conservation/cataloging project was conducted by the Am. Samoa Government Office of Archives and Records via an American Samoa Historical Records Advisory Board grant from the U.S. National Historical Publications and Records Commission ,Washington, D.C.

.LAND TITLE CASES 1900-1978

Cases involving land title claims, disputes, leases, condemnations etc. brought before the U.S. Naval Court, Office of the Secretary of Native Affairs, Judicial Department and the High Court of American Samoa. Cases are arranged chronologically by case number/date and span an entire year(s). Many records in this series are untranslated. In addition to court proceedings cases sometimes contain or have references to traditional Samoan history, genealogies, legends, survey maps, wills and misc. misfiled administrative papers of the early American Samoan Government.
